One Family Under God
Conflict Resolution, Peace & Development

*Global Peace Festival - Africa
International Young Leaders Summit

Kenyatta International Conference Center
Nairobi, Kenya November 17-21, 2010

WELCOME REMARKS BY HIS EXCELLENCY HON. MWAI KIBAKI, C.G.H., M.P., PRESIDENT AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE DEFENCE FORCES OF THE REPUBLIC OF KENYA ON THE OCCASION OF THE OFFICIAL OPENING OF
THE GLOBAL PEACE CONVENTION, AT KICC, NAIROBI ON 18TH NOVEMBER, 2010

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I am delighted to welcome the delegates to the Global Peace Convention 2010 being held here in Nairobi. To the international participants, in particular, I extend a warm welcome to Kenya.

The theme of the conference, "One Family under God: Conflict Resolution, Peace and Development," could not be more relevant for Kenya at this time. I also feel honoured to serve as the patron of the Convention and promise give it the full support of my government.

Kenya stands at the threshold of a great and hopeful new future. In August, Kenyans voted overwhelmingly to adopt a new Constitution. This established the fundamental principles and the legal framework for the nation to advance into a peaceful and prosperous future.

Peaceful development extends to the region as well. In July the five nations of the East African Community established a common market. That is why I am particularly pleased that one of the fruits of the Convention will be a plan for setting up an East African Peace Service Corps which will further our aims of regional integration and peace building through service.

I also welcome the Nairobi Declaration that will lay out key foundations for peaceful development, which will be presented for adoption by the Convention. In particular I welcome the proposal to make the Global Peace Convention an annual head-of-state sponsored event convening in various regions of the world.

I look forward to finding in your conclusions many new ideas and insights that can help us build Kenya, East Africa and the rest of the world in a peaceful environment.

May God bless you.

Respected Delegates,

On behalf of the International Host Committee of the Global Peace Festival Foundation (GPF), we are proud to host you at this auspicious 2010 Global Peace Convention. The diversity of humanity you all represent coming from the far corners of the earth is a beautiful thing to behold. It is the visible display of the fruits of your and our collective labours for global peace. At this Convention, by the guidance of His Excellency President Mwai Kibaki, we have convened to address the subject of Conflict Resolution, Peace and Development for the human family. It is our hope that the collective intelligence, experience and expertise of all the delegates will lead to effective and practical outcomes to move all of your peace and development programs to greater success.

We take this opportunity to thank President Mwai Kibaki for the support we have received from the Government in every aspect of preparations for this event. We are proud of the important steps Kenya has taken in recent months toward becoming a society of greater equity, tolerance, and appreciation of diversity. Current efforts if sustained will lead to greater peace and development. We are particularly pleased to inform international delegates that Kenya has been reborn under a new constitution, and that you have come to country that is re-inventing itself in pursuit of conflict resolution, peace and development. What you will discuss here is therefore of great practical importance. We hope that you will also find it of equal or greater importance for your work in your countries too. Karibuni Kenya!

Welcome to Kenya!

Message from the Chairman of the Global Peace Festival Foundation

I am deeply impressed by the commitment and level of ownership by so many leaders in Kenyan society in hosting the 2010 Global Peace Convention, the Global Peace Festival Africa, and the International Young Leaders Summit. I am proud that the Global Peace Festival Foundation (GPF) can work with such dedicated Kenyan partners to make these events a success.

I particularly want to congratulate the Kenyan people for the historic vote in August approving a new Constitution that advances Kenya's role as a leading African nation. The peaceful balloting and broad support for the Yes campaign on what H.E. President Mwai Kibaki called "the most important day in the history of our nation since independence" heralds a new beginning for Kenya. You may be justly proud of this bold and progressive national charter.

The optimism and inclusive vision reflected in this time of national renewal is the same spirit that animates GPF's vision of One Family under God, transcending race, culture, and religion. Each Global Peace Festival is more than an event. It is part of a movement for peace that brings together the whole human family by breaking down barriers, resolving conflicts, and affirming the universal principles and shared values that unite us. Vision must be expressed in action in order to secure peace.

GPF focuses on dynamic initiative in three key areas: interfaith cooperation, building strong stable families, and promoting a culture of service for the greater good especially among the youth. It is, therefore, particularly appropriate that this Convention—consolidating the advances of Global Peace Festivals and Global Peace Leadership Conferences recently held in Nepal, Indonesia, and Paraguay—concludes in Kenya, where a new spirit of unity and national purpose is in the air.

I want to thank the leaders of Kenya for their great support and partnership in hosting this historic international peace forum. We look forward to moving beyond the deliberations and proposals of the Convention and rolling up our sleeves in the months and years ahead, here in Kenya and elsewhere, to answer pressing human needs and together build a unified world of peace.

My heartfelt prayer is for the Global Peace Convention in Kenya to become a model and a stepping stone on the path toward a world of lasting peace where the dream of One Family under God becomes a reality.

Dr. Hyun Jin Moon
Chairman
Global Peace Festival Foundation

GPF NEPAL

Nearly thirty thousand Nepalis from different religious, ethnic, and political backgrounds joined in celebration at Dashrath Stadium in Kathmandu at the Global Peace Festival South Asia 2010 on October 2, 2010. A Peace March around the stadium featuring ethnic, religious, civic and cultural organizations representing the diversity of Nepali society opened the Festival. Nepal is undergoing an historic transition from a Hindu monarchy to a parliamentary democracy, and one significant highlight was the signing of a pledge by representatives of the main political parties to bring the Constitution-drafting process to a peaceful and successful conclusion. Representatives of Nepal's major religious traditions also expressed their common commitment to work in unity for the cause of peace.

The Global Peace Leadership Conference (GPLC) on October 1 in Kathmandu, "One Family Under God: Reconciliation, Peace and Development," attracted delegates from 12 countries including the United States, Japan, Korea, Mongolia, India, China, and the Philippines, as well as prominent speakers from Pakistan, Nepal, and Bangladesh.

The Global Peace Festival has been endorsed and supported by partners from government, business, and civic organizations, including the Ministry of Peace and Reconstruction, the Nepal Chamber of Commerce, the Nepal Tourism Board, the UN Association of Nepal, the Nepal Scouts, the Private and Boarding Schools Organization of Nepal, HISSAN, the Nepal Media Society, the Human Rights Organization Nepal, and the Community Police Coordination Council.

GPF Indonesia

An estimated ten thousand young people gathered at Jakarta's Gelora Bung Karno Stadium for the Global Peace Festival Asia Pacific 2010 on October 17. They came from area campuses engaged in GPF sponsored service projects and from the youth branch of Nahdlatul Ulama, the largest Muslim in Indonesia with a membership of 50-60 million, which is partnering with GPF for the festival and Global Peace Leadership Conference. Nahdlatul Ulama supports an extensive network of social support and education with 18,000 boarding schools across Indonesia.

The interfaith conference held in the Indonesian capital broke new ground for GPF. It was the first time that the organization had collaborated so closely with a major Muslim organization, an important step in advancing the interfaith component of GPF's program.

The GPF-backed Power of Rupiah campaign has been taken up on many Jakarta-area campuses. The campaign encourages students to give small amounts of money on a regular, even daily basis, to help less fortunate children, especially street kids. The campaign creates an awareness of poverty and its human impact among the student donors and teaches the habit of helping others.

At the October 15-18 Global Peace Leadership Conference, sponsored jointly by NU and GPF, Indonesia's Vice President Dr. Boediono affirmed the need for Indonesia's commitment to religious tolerance and cooperation in his remarks at the opening plenary. "We must not let the symptoms of radicalism and the perception of a clash of civilizations to flourish," he said. "Once we let radicalism take over our train of thought it will lead us to destruction."

The Global Peace Festivals in Nepal, Paraguay, and Indonesia highlighted the regions' rich artistic and cultural traditions. In Indonesia, Prof. Said (top, right), chairman of Nahdlatul Ulama, the largest Muslim organization in the country and strategic GPF partner, spoke about the importance of tolerance and understanding among faiths. Vice Chairman Dr. Slamet Effendi Yusuf (middle, right) also addressed delegates at the Global Peace Leadership Convention and emphasized the importance of social service in peacebuilding.

GPF PARAGUAY

The 2010 Global Peace Festival and Global Peace Leadership Conference in Asuncion, Paraguay, brought thousands together to reaffirm the broad-based commitment of the Paraguayan government and civil society to peace building in Latin America. The Ministry of Education closed Asuncion schools for the day to encourage students to attend the Festival, and later signed an agreement for the Global Peace Foundation-Paraguay to provide character education curricula for schools throughout the country. GPF- Paraguay also partnered with the town of Itaugua and the environmental group A Todo Pulmon to build a park specifically for the blind, a first for Paraguay. The park is designed with curving paths, curbs, and minor obstacles to help the blind learn to navigate the outdoors with the use of a cane. The town officially named the park "Plaza Fundacion Paz Global," or "Global Peace Foundation Park."

At the Global Peace Leadership Conference, "Opportunities, Difficulties and Challenges for Latin America in this Era," three former presidents, Luis Lacalle of Uruguay (1990-95), Marco Cerezo of Guatemala (1986-91), and Jorge Quiroga of Bolivia (2001-02) spoke about the struggle to establish democracy in the face of military dictatorships. The former presidents also addressed security in the region, the environment and a culture of sustainability, how media and communications influence the idea of citizenship; and the role of the private sector in economic development, and suggested lessons that might be learnt to help the future development of Latin America.

The continuing threats to democracy from income inequality, the vast and destabilizing drug economy, and the new authoritarianism of the so-called 'Bolivarian revolution' were also emphasized. The conference was organized by IDPPS, a Paraguayan think tank set up by the Global Peace Foundation of Paraguay. The conference concluded with the adoption of the Asuncion Declaration by unanimous consent, which calls for the unity of South America beyond differences of race, religion, class, and nationality, guided by the ideal of 'One Family under God.'

KENYA INITIATIVES

The Global Peace Festival Foundation (GPFF) has launched a number of multi-sector peace initiatives throughout Kenya to foster peace among Kenya's multi-ethnic population. In collaboration with government ministries, the business community, and other faith-based and grassroots organizations, GPFF has implemented character training, peace education, and Sports for Peace programs based on the vision of One Family under God and challenging youths and communities to rise above identity-based conflict.

NAIROBI RIVER PEACE INITIATIVE

In August 2008, GPFF mobilized a volunteer coalition of Nairobi businesses, civic organizations, and governmental agencies, thus initiating the largest public cleanup campaign of the Nairobi River in Kenya's history. The ongoing project has engaged thousands of volunteers during six major mobilizations to date. In June 2010, the initiative entered a new phase with an intensive three-day campaign clean the Nairobi Dam. GPFF with the support of the Office of the Prime Minister mobilized hundreds of volunteer groups and over 3,000 youth volunteers.

CHARACTER COMPETENCY TRAINING

GPFF in partnership with Kenya's Ministry of Education and Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports has advanced character competency training in three outcome areas: economic and social entrepreneurship, peace building, and citizenship. Tailoring curricula to specific social challenges in Kenya's eight provinces, the programs emphasize mutual respect, responsibility, empathy and compassion, communication and relationship skills, and good citizenship. Practical character competencies also include fostering a vision of leadership beyond tribe; increased work readiness, entrepreneurship and job retention skills; and reduction of high-risk behaviors.

RIFT VALLEY PEACE INITIATIVE

The ethnically diverse Rift Valley Province witnessed some of the worst violence following the 2007 elections. GPFF in collaboration with government, civil society and faith based groups including the Peace Monitors, Administrative Police, Catholic Church, and other grassroots organizations, implemented character training, peace education, and Sports for Peace programs inculcating a sense of national pride and Kenyan citizenship. GPFF's Sports for Peace tournaments and programs include soccer, martial arts, and field hockey. Sports for Peace tournaments in Nairobi and Rift Valley in 2008 drew over 50,000 peaceful spectators from many tribes embroiled in conflicts just months before.

About the Global Peace Festival Foundation

The Global Peace Festival Foundation (GPFF) works to facilitate intercultural and interreligious cooperation, strengthen God-centered marriages and families, and foster a culture of peace and service. GPFF holds that all people are endowed by the Creator with equal value, and therefore share a common heritage. This is the original source of human rights and human dignity.

Among GPFF's projects are Global Peace Conventions convened yearly to engage peacemakers worldwide to share best practices and network on common programmatic objectives; festivals that celebrate cultural and artistic expression, notably in regions with ethnically diverse peoples; and service projects such as the Nairobi River Peace Initiative and Mindanao Peace Initiative that tackle pressing environmental or social problems and draw upon all sides to work for the common welfare.

Since 2007, this message and approach have resonated in the hearts of people from every corner of the world. Momentum continues to build through the commitment of growing numbers of partners, through pledges of support from government and business, and through swelling numbers of volunteers in GPFF programs from Kenya to Paraguay to Mongolia.

A peace advocate, accomplished leader of global youth and service organizations, and avid sportsman, Dr. Hyun Jin Moon is the chairman of the Global Peace Festival Foundation and its policy-making board, the Global Leadership Council. With wide-ranging experience as a spiritual leader, entrepreneur, and philanthropist, Dr. Moon stresses the importance of a spiritual worldview, youth engagement, personal responsibility, and integrity of character as essential elements of effective peace-building. With a message rooted in universal principles and values and the eternal human aspiration of building a world of lasting peace, Dr. Moon credits his Father for his spiritual orientation and God for the life lessons that have molded his worldview.

INTERFAITH

Faith not as an obstacle to peace but a vital resource, and faith leaders must play an essential role in the process of reconciliation and peacebuilding.

FAMILY

The family is the school of love and the fundamental building block of the world of peace that is the dream of all humankind.

SERVICE

Service for others is a universal ethical ideal, engendering compassion and understanding among people and fostering an environment of peace.

2007

Launched in 2007, the Global Peace Festival (GPF) has brought together more than a million peace-minded people in nations on every continent. An innovative approach to peacebuilding, the GPF combines multi-cultural celebrations with service projects that engage volunteers across religious and ethnic boundaries, united by a vision of One Family under God.

2008

In August 2008, the GPF arrived in Kenya in an environment of deep division following the disputed 2007 presidential election. Kenyans from across the economic, political, and tribal spectrum responded to the GPF's program of interfaith service, environmental stewardship, and cultural celebration. "This is an important day for Kenya and for Africa," Kenyan Prime Minister Odinga declared at the GPF's main event. "It is a new beginning in the quest for our nation to be once again known as a nation of peace and security."

2010

In 2010, Prime Minister Odinga will act as patron of the Global Peace Festival-Kenya. Convention delegates will join Nairobi residents and other international guests at Nairobi's Nayayo Stadium on November 20 for a day of entertainment, inspiration, and cultural celebration.

Acknowledgements

The Global Peace Festival Foundation would like to gratefully recognize Kenyan President H.E. Mwai Kibaki and Prime Minister Rt. Hon. Raila Odinga and their respective staffs for their support of this Convention. GPF would also like to thank the four co-chairs —Sir James Mancham KBE, Founding President of Seychelles; His Grace Eliud Wabukala, Archbishop of the Anglican Church of Kenya; Dr. Manu Chandaria OBE, CEO of Comcraft Group; and Mr. David Caprara, Vice President for Strategic Partnerships, Global Peace Festival Foundation, who have tirelessly invested their talents and energies in the organization of this international gathering. Many other organizations have supported the planning and hosting of the Convention, The Global Peace Festival, and the International Young Leaders Summit.

“It is fitting, that we have come back to humanity’s birthplace to break away from our collective history of war and conflict, and to set up a new paradigm for peace and prosperity for all mankind.

What is most important now is not how and where the human family began millions of years ago, but rather how, where and when the human family will at last come together to live in peace.”
